

seating

Ahrend

Casual office seating doesn't always have to look ultracorporate. So demonstrates the 601 bench, which possesses a more residential aesthetic. The one-piece steam-formed bentwood bench is made from recycled beech that can be treated for outdoor use; there is also a polished aluminum version. Measuring 18½ inches deep by 47½ wide, it stands 17¾ inches high—making it a suitable footrest to boot. 973-652-4357; ahrend.com. circle 334

Domeau & Pérès

In creating Hampton, designer Eric Jourdan revamped a terrace chair he'd designed for a golf club. Usable indoors or out, the deck-like piece features a frame of red cedar planks and seat and back cushions in white polyester. It measures 25½ inches wide by 30¾ deep by 31 high. 33-147-609-386; domeauperes.com.

circle 335

Loll Designs

Coco isn't just green, it makes a green statement, too. The manufacturer produces the chair with postconsumer recycled plastic, uses a minimum of recycled-cardboard packaging, and pays a fee on every shipment to offset the carbon footprint. Seriously eco, the piece nevertheless comes in fun colors: leaf green, chocolate brown, sky blue, apple red, cloud white, and black. 877-740-3387; lolldesigns.com. circle 338

Nico Yektai

The sculptural White Cast bench sports faceted cast-concrete bases supporting a bone-shaped solid ash seat, which is finished in a clear water-based varnish or treated for outdoor use. Sixty inches wide, 20 deep, and 17 high, it can be customized in any hardwood and standard concrete. 631-458-4090; nicoyektai.com. circle 337

Leland International

Bleached tree trunks on a beach informed the design of the Ebb bench. Offered in lengths ranging from 2 to 10 feet, it features a rounded hollow construction that looks light yet substantial, making it ideal as a standalone or a modular piece that can link to series of hubs. The curved plywood surface is finished in either walnut or beech veneer and can even be upholstered. 800-859-7510; lelandinternational.com. circle 336 ➔

