Designed by Lievore Altherr Molina, Slam from Leland International appears to float over the floor, thanks to its elegant proportions and a series of receding glides. With five frame options, three shell materials and a powder coat textured to match the polypropylene matte finish, Slam can easily furnish a number of spaces within a single facility while maintaining a common aesthetic.

Zenergy from Safco promises to enliven any environment with its fun and spunky attitude. Designed with an anti-burst exercise ball covered in mesh, Zenergy supports better posture and balance while keeping the body actively engaged, making it perfect for learning, common or collaborative areas. The covers are offered in three colors, and are accented by four powder coated legs with stationary glides.

Bolero from Highmark combines style, functionality and ergonomic comfort in a friendly design. The polyester and polyelastomer back is breathable, comfortable and supportive, while the chair's proprietary Body Balance mechanism allows it to automatically adjust to each user. Available with multiple arm and control options, Bolero is an affordable option for task, conference and executive settings.
